The North Carolina Governor's School is the oldest institution of its kind in the nation and has a proud tradition of excellence. Selection to the North Carolina Governor's School is a rigorous selection processes, through the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction. The selection is made from over 1,700 state-level nominees, each application exemplifying excellence.

The Governor's School of North Carolina is a five and one-half week summer residential program for intellectually gifted high school students, integrating academic disciplines, the arts, and unique courses on each of the two campuses. The curriculum focuses on the exploration of the most recent ideas and concepts in each discipline, and does not involve credit, tests, or grades. Participants are selected based on nominations by their school systems for academic or performing/visual arts aptitude. Students selected from Thomasville High School will have their Governor's School summer tuition paid by the district.
